

Click Here

Forestville military academy md

Share — copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format for any purpose, even commercially. Adapt — remix, transform, and build upon the material for any purpose, even commercially. The licensor cannot revoke these freedoms as long as you follow the license terms. Attribution — You must give appropriate credit , provide a link to the license, and indicate if changes were made . You may do so in any reasonable manner, but not in any way that suggests the licensor endorses you or your use. ShareAlike — If you remix, transform, or build upon the material, you must distribute your contributions under the same license as the original. No additional restrictions — You may not apply legal terms or technological measures that legally restrict others from doing anything the license permits. You do not have to comply with the license for elements of the material in the public domain or where your use is permitted by an applicable exception or limitation . No warranties are given. The license may not give you all of the permissions necessary for your intended use. For example, other rights such as publicity, privacy, or moral rights may limit how you use the material. Public magnet high school in Maryland, US This article about school may require cleanup. Please review editing advice and help improve this article. (July 2019) Forestville High SchoolLocation7001 Beltz DrForestville, Maryland 20747United StatesCoordinates38°50′14″N 76°53′10″W﻿ / ﻿38.83722°N 76.88611°W﻿ / 38.83722; -76.88611InformationTypePublic Magnet High SchoolEstablished1982Closed2016School districtPrince George's County Public SchoolsSuperintendentKevin M. MaxwellPrincipalNathaniel LaneyGrades9–12Enrollment792Campus typeSuburban, urbanNicknameKnightsWebsitewww.pgcps.org/forestville Forestville High School was a public magnet high school located in Forestville, a section of unincorporated Prince George's County, Maryland, United States. The school had a comprehensive program with a specialized military academy magnet program. The academy, part of Prince George's County Public Schools, was notable as the only military academy in Prince George's County. Forestville High School was part of the United States Government's JROTC program. In addition to this, Forestville High School has been recognized in the 2006–2007 school year for making the Annual Yearly Progress (AYP). Also, around 50% of students attending FMA have passed the HSA exams. The principal of the school was Nathaniel Laney, a Prince George's County native. The JROTC program was first implemented for all grade levels in 2006, which was led by Major General Warren L. Freeman, the school's commandant. The school mandated JROTC as a class for all grade levels, based on Leadership Education Training (LET). All students began with a rank of cadet, ending with colonel. However, very few students progressed to the highest rank. In order to be promoted, one must merit it through a minimum of GPAs (depending on rank sought). Also, for the rank of Sergeant First Class and above promotions, students had to present themselves on the Promotion Board (based on peers). Prior to 1982, the physical buildings that became Forestville High School housed Forestville Elementary and Spaulding Junior High School from 1965 - 1982, respectively. Among the faculty of Forestville Elementary was long-time principal, Mrs. Barbara Johnson and teacher Mrs. Dorothy Murray. In the Fall of 2002, the first military academy class was admitted to Forestville. Along with this came an increase in numbers of those who were members of the JROTC program. Forestville High School then moved from a Battalion JROTC level to a Brigade JROTC level, one of the largest in the state of Maryland. The first Brigade Commander was Cadet Colonel Rashonda Tangle and the highest ranking Cadet Non-Commissioned Officer was Cadet Command Sergeant Major Kiana Carr. In the fall of 2006 came more evolution. Forestville High School became Forestville Military Academy, with all students in grades 9 - 12 being enrolled in ARJROTC. In addition, with one of the largest populations of students enrolled in JROTC at a public secondary institution, Forestville became a Regiment of cadets. Cadet Colonel Jeshawna Wholley became the first Regiment Commander and Cadet Command Sergeant Major Valicia Demery became first regiment CSM of Forestville Military Academy. While members on the Board of Education of Prince George County are opposed to Forestville keeping its Military Academy status, the academy still remains an Army Unit With Distinction. Former Cadets Colonel K. Holmes (Former Regiment Commander), Lt.Colonel A. Michel (Former Deputy Regiment Commander), Lt.Colonel E. Hunter(Former Regiment Executive Officer), and CSM. E.Boyd (Former Regiment CSM) led the charge of keeping Forestville a complete Military Academy. Although many people try to tear down the values and status of the school, FMA still keeps its national status of excellence. It welcomes new cadets every year and its main mission is to promote higher education and motivate young people into becoming better citizens. On March 8, 2016, CEO Dr. Kevin Maxwell sent a letter to parents that Forestville would be closed after the end of the 2015-2016 school year.[1] despite protests against closing the school. PG County officials stated that the continued operations of the school could interfere with funding of nearby Suitland High School. At the time Forestville had fewer than 800 students.[2] According to Maxwell, the primary rationale for closure was the decrease in the school's number of students.[1] Students in the attendance zone of neighboring Suitland High were reassigned there for the 2016-2017 school year while others were reassigned to their neighborhood schools.[3] This article's list of alumni may not follow Wikipedia's verifiability policy. Please improve this article by removing names that do not have independent reliable sources showing they merit inclusion in this article AND are alumni, or by incorporating the relevant publications into the body of the article through appropriate citations. (July 2019) Ginuwine, singer Quentin Hillsman, college basketball coach Santo Stephens, NFL player Patrick Clark, professional wrestler Walt Williams, NBA player Public military schools in the United States ^ a b "Prince George's Co. moves to close Forestville High School". WUSA. March 7, 2016. Retrieved August 29, 2018. ^ Hernández, Arelis R.; Donna St. George (January 17, 2016). "Pr. George's community opposes Forestville High School's closure". Washington Post. Retrieved August 29, 2018. ^ "Welcome to the Forestville High School Transition Page." Prince George's County Public Schools. Retrieved on May 31, 2016. Forestville Military Academy's Website on PGPCS Retrieved from " What Is Forestville Military Academy Md? Admission Guide Forestville Military Academy, located in Forestville, Maryland, is a public military academy that provides a unique educational experience for its students. The academy is part of the Prince George's County Public Schools system and offers a comprehensive curriculum that combines academic rigor with military discipline and leadership training. In this article, we will delve into the details of Forestville Military Academy, its admission process, and what makes it an attractive option for students seeking a challenging and rewarding educational experience. Introduction to Forestville Military Academy Forestville Military Academy is a four-year public high school that is designed to provide students with a well-rounded education that prepares them for success in college, careers, and beyond. The academy's mission is to develop young men and women into responsible, respectful, and resourceful citizens who are equipped with the skills, knowledge, and character necessary to excel in an ever-changing world. The academy's curriculum is based on the principles of academic excellence, leadership development, and community service, with a focus on preparing students for college and careers in fields such as science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM). Admission Requirements Admission to Forestville Military Academy is open to students who are entering the 9th grade and are residents of Prince George's County, Maryland. The admission process is competitive, and applicants must meet certain eligibility requirements, which include: Being a resident of Prince George's County, Maryland being between the ages of 14 and 18 Having a minimum GPA of 2.0 Passing a physical fitness test Submitting a completed application packet, which includes transcripts, test scores, and letters of recommendation The admission process The admission process at Forestville Military Academy typically begins in the fall of the preceding year. Interested students and their families are encouraged to attend an information session or open house to learn more about the academy's programs and admission requirements. The admission process typically involves the following steps: Application Submission: Students must submit a completed application packet, which includes transcripts, test scores, and letters of recommendation. Review of Application: The academy's admissions committee reviews each application to ensure that the student meets the eligibility requirements. Physical Fitness Test: Applicants must pass a physical fitness test to demonstrate their ability to participate in the academy's physical training program. Interview: Selected applicants may be invited to participate in an interview with the admissions committee to assess their leadership potential and motivation for attending the academy. Notification of Admission: Applicants who are accepted to the academy will receive a notification of admission, which includes information about the next steps in the enrollment process. Programs and Courses Forestville Military Academy offers a comprehensive curriculum that includes a range of courses in subjects such as English, mathematics, science, social studies, and foreign languages. The academy also offers specialized courses in areas such as leadership development, military science, and physical education. Some of the programs and courses available at Forestville Military Academy include: Leadership Development: The academy's leadership development program is designed to help students develop the skills and confidence they need to become effective leaders. Military Science: The academy's military science program provides students with a comprehensive understanding of military history, tactics, and protocol. Physical Education: The academy's physical education program is designed to help students develop their physical fitness and athletic skills. STEM Programs: The academy offers a range of STEM programs, including courses in computer science, engineering, and biotechnology. Student Life Student life at Forestville Military Academy is designed to be challenging and rewarding. Students are expected to maintain a high level of discipline and respect for themselves, their peers, and the academy's staff. The academy offers a range of extracurricular activities, including sports teams, clubs, and community service organizations. Some of the benefits of attending Forestville Military Academy include: Discipline and Structure: The academy's military structure provides students with a sense of discipline and purpose. Leadership Opportunities: The academy offers a range of leadership opportunities, including positions as cadet officers and team leaders. Community Service: The academy's community service program provides students with the opportunity to give back to their community and develop a sense of social responsibility. College and Career Preparation: The academy's college and career preparation program provides students with the skills and knowledge they need to succeed in college and careers. Conclusion Forestville Military Academy is a unique and challenging educational institution that provides students with a comprehensive education and leadership training. The academy's admission process is competitive, and applicants must meet certain eligibility requirements. However, for students who are willing to put in the effort and dedication, the rewards of attending Forestville Military Academy can be substantial. With its focus on academic excellence, leadership development, and community service, Forestville Military Academy is an attractive option for students who are seeking a challenging and rewarding educational experience. What is the average class size at Forestville Military Academy? + The average class size at Forestville Military Academy is around 20-25 students, which allows for personalized attention and instruction. + Forestville Military Academy offers a range of extracurricular activities, including sports teams, clubs, and community service organizations. Some examples include the drill team, color guard, and volunteer work with local charities. Can students at Forestville Military Academy participate in sports? + Yes, students at Forestville Military Academy can participate in sports. The academy offers a range of athletic programs, including football, basketball, soccer, and track and field. Is Forestville Military Academy a boarding school? + No, Forestville Military Academy is not a boarding school. Students attend classes during the day and return home in the evening. What is the cost of attending Forestville Military Academy? + As a public school, Forestville Military Academy is free to attend for students who are residents of Prince George's County, Maryland. However, students may be required to pay for uniforms, equipment, and other expenses. Forestville Military Academy, also known as FMA, is a military high school in Maryland. Grades 9 through 12 are offered at FMA and the school mascot is the Might Knights. The current principal is Nathaniel Laney. It was only 2002 when the first military academy class was admitted to Forestville which makes it one of the newest military campuses in the United States. The school's JROTC program is mandatory for all students. Students begin with the rank of cadet and increases in rank are through minimum GPAs. This article about school may require cleanup. Please review editing advice and help improve this article. (July 2019) Forestville High School was a public magnet high school located in Forestville, a section of unincorporated Prince George's County, Maryland, United States. The school had a comprehensive program with a specialized military academy magnet program. Forestville High SchoolLocation7001 Beltz DrForestville, Maryland 20747United StatesCoordinates38°50′14″N 76°53′10″W﻿ / ﻿38.83722°N 76.88611°W﻿ / 38.83722; -76.88611InformationTypePublic Magnet High SchoolEstablished1982Closed2016School districtPrince George's County Public SchoolsSuperintendentKevin M. MaxwellPrincipalNathaniel LaneyGrades9–12Enrollment792Campus typeSuburban, urbanNicknameKnightsWebsitewww.pgcps.org/forestville The academy, part of Prince George's County Public Schools, was notable as the only military academy in Prince George's County. Forestville High School was part of the United States Government's JROTC program. In addition to this, Forestville High School has been recognized in the 2006–2007 school year for making the Annual Yearly Progress (AYP). Also, around 50% of students attending FMA have passed the HSA exams. The principal of the school was Nathaniel Laney, a Prince George's County native. The JROTC program was first implemented for all grade levels in 2006, which was led by Major General Warren L. Freeman, the school's commandant. The school mandated JROTC as a class for all grade levels, based on Leadership Education Training (LET). All students began with a rank of cadet, ending with colonel. However, very few students progressed to the highest rank. In order to be promoted, one must merit it through a minimum of GPAs (depending on rank sought). Also, for the rank of Sergeant First Class and above promotions, students had to present themselves on the Promotion Board (based on peers). Prior to 1982, the physical buildings that became Forestville High School housed Forestville Elementary and Spaulding Junior High School from 1965 - 1982, respectively. Among the faculty of Forestville Elementary was long-time principal, Mrs. Barbara Johnson and teacher Mrs. Dorothy Murray. In the Fall of 2002, the first military academy class was admitted to Forestville. Along with this came an increase in numbers of those who were members of the JROTC program. Forestville High School then moved from a Battalion JROTC level to a Brigade JROTC level, one of the largest in the state of Maryland. The first Brigade Commander was Cadet Colonel Rashonda Tangle and the highest ranking Cadet Non-Commissioned Officer was Cadet Command Sergeant Major Kiana Carr. In the fall of 2006 came more evolution. Forestville High School became Forestville Military Academy, with all students in grades 9 - 12 being enrolled in ARJROTC. In addition, with one of the largest populations of students enrolled in JROTC at a public secondary institution, Forestville became a Regiment of cadets. Cadet Colonel Jeshawna Wholley became the first Regiment Commander and Cadet Command Sergeant Major Valicia Demery became first regiment CSM of Forestville Military Academy. While members on the Board of Education of Prince George County are opposed to Forestville keeping its Military Academy status, the academy still remains an Army Unit With Distinction. Former Cadets Colonel K. Holmes (Former Regiment Commander), Lt.Colonel A. Michel (Former Deputy Regiment Commander), Lt.Colonel E. Hunter(Former Regiment Executive Officer), and CSM. E.Boyd (Former Regiment CSM) led the charge of keeping Forestville a complete Military Academy. Although many people try to tear down the values and status of the school, FMA still keeps its national status of excellence. It welcomes new cadets every year and its main mission is to promote higher education and motivate young people into becoming better citizens. On March 8, 2016, CEO Dr. Kevin Maxwell sent a letter to parents that Forestville would be closed after the end of the 2015-2016 school year.[1] despite protests against closing the school. PG County officials stated that the continued operations of the school could interfere with funding of nearby Suitland High School. At the time Forestville had fewer than 800 students.[2] According to Maxwell, the primary rationale for closure was the decrease in the school's number of students.[1] Students in the attendance zone of neighboring Suitland High were reassigned there for the 2016-2017 school year while others were reassigned to their neighborhood schools.[3] This article's list of alumni may not follow Wikipedia's verifiability policy. Please improve this article by removing names that do not have independent reliable sources showing they merit inclusion in this article AND are alumni, or by incorporating the relevant publications into the body of the article through appropriate citations. (July 2019) Ginuwine, singer Quentin Hillsman, college basketball coach Santo Stephens, NFL player Patrick Clark, professional wrestler Walt Williams, NBA player Public military schools in the United States ^ a b "Prince George's Co. moves to close Forestville High School". WUSA. March 7, 2016. Retrieved August 29, 2018. ^ Hernández, Arelis R.; Donna St. George (January 17, 2016). "Pr. George's community opposes Forestville High School's closure". Washington Post. Retrieved August 29, 2018. ^ "Welcome to the Forestville High School Transition Page." Prince George's County Public Schools. Retrieved on May 31, 2016. Forestville Military Academy's Website on PGPCS Retrieved from " Texas Military schools are privately run based on tuition that rivals university level costs and are located in hill country of southeast Texas. The schools themselves are run as private college preparatory secondary schools with a military emphasis. Marine Military Academy is located in Harlingen, approximately thirty miles from the Gulf coast. Founded in 1965 on a closed military base, this school receives students from grades eight to twelve and offers a one year post graduate study program. This school is founded on traditional United States Marine ethics and ideals but has no official affiliation with the Corps. The Marine Military Academy utilizes a traditional secondary education sequence and offers it's student duel credit opportunities for college credit while in high school. Further west lies the San Marcos Baptist Academy in San Marcos which is also known as the San Marcos Academy. Founded in 1907 this school is religiously based and services youths from seventh to twelve grade, with a student population of approximately three hundred. The San Marcos Baptist school gets it's military roots beginning at the start of World War 1, the federal government granted the academy a junior unit of the Reserve Officer Training Corps. Southwest of San Marcos lies the Metropolitan city of San Antonio and the TMI- The Episcopal School in Texas. TMI holds the title as one of the oldest episcopal schools in the southwest and the oldest independent schools in Texas, founded in 1893. TMI was originally founded as a school for boys and changed into the West Texas Military Academy. The academy maintains approximately four hundred students mostly from the south Texas and Northern Mexico but has students form all over the United States as well as other South American countries and offers both a religiously and educationally structured day. Marine Military Academy Grades8-12. PG Students300 (approximate) Faculty26 (approximate) Marine Military Academy (MMA) is a private military college prep school. Grades 8 through 12 are offered on the Harlingen, Texas campus. The campus used to be an Air Force base for decade or two. The MMA was founded in 1965 and its values are inspired by the USMC. But the school is not affiliated with the Marine Corps directly [...] San Marcos Baptist Academy Grades7-12 Students275 (approximate) Faculty40 (approximate) Accredited by: Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Texas Association of Boarding Schools Brief Overview San Marcos Baptist Academy is known by several names: San Marcos Academy, San Marcos Academy, SMBA, and SMA. The Academy is a Baptist coeducational prep school. Founded in 1907, the school offers grades 7 through 12. About three quarters of the students are boarders [...]. St. Mary's University ROTC GradesCollege Students2,400 (approximate) Faculty180 (approximate) St. Mary's University in San Antonio, Texas has an Army Reserve Officer Training Corps Program. The ROTC program at St. Mary's University prepares cadets for military challenges after graduation. Students can work hard to attain leadership positions within their chain of command. The military structure helps to foster an environment of discipline and accountability. Cadets may get opportunities to attend [...] Texas A&M Corps of Cadets GradesCollege Students2,250 (approximate) Faculty250 (approximate) The Texas A&M Corps of Cadets is comprised of more than 2,250 cadets. The Corps of Cadets is a prestigious program. There are around 1,800 scholarship opportunities for cadets at Texas A&M. In addition to traditional college classes, cadets get leadership training and experience. There is no obligation of service post graduation, but students can choose to commission through the [...] Texas Maritime Academy GradesUGRD StudentsN/A (approximate) FacultyN/A (approximate) Since 1965, the Texas Maritime Academy has been training deck and engineering officers for the merchant marine, the Strategic Sealift and the U.S. Navy. Located in Galveston, the Academy is a division of Texas A&M University. The Academy awards Bachelor of Science Degrees in a wide variety of marine and maritime fields of endeavor. The Academy offers numerous certification and [...] Texas Military Institute Grades9-12 Students405 (approximate) Faculty45 (approximate) Texas Military Institute, also known as the The Episcopal School of Texas, also known as TMI, is a coeducational Episcopal college prep school in Texas. The San Antonio campus has both boarders and day students and is one of the oldest Episcopal schools in the Southwest. Founded in 1893 by James Steptoe Johnston, TMI has about 400 students enrolled and [...] University of Houston APROTC GradesCollege Students40,000 (approximate) Faculty3,500 (approximate) The University of Houston in Houston, Texas has an Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps program. The Air Force ROTC program has three and four year options for students interested in commissioning after graduation. There are scholarships available for students that qualify. Students participate in weekly leadership classes. In addition to leadership, physical fitness is a top priority. Students will [...]